Announcements concerning items of community interest. No action will be taken or discussed.

Mayor Pro Tem Hank Dugie – Thank you, Mr. Mayor. I will start off with some library updates. On Wednesday, June 23, join us for some Cool Chemistry from 2 to 2:45 and from 3:15 to 4 p.m. There are two shows. Kids will discover all the ways we use chemistry in our daily lives, such as how fireworks get their color, what makes a car go, and so on. This is a bigger event, so it will be in the Civic Center. Teens can take part in the Perfect Painting Program on Tuesday, June 29, from 5 to 6:30 p.m. in the Library Theater. Participants will learn how to paint their favorite feline friend. Please register in advance. Be a part of the next History Club program on Monday, July 12, from 7 to 8 p.m. Someone from the Galveston Historic Seaport will tell the story of the Tall Ship Elyssa, which is one of the oldest ships still sailing today. This program is for all ages and will be held in person in the theater or via Zoom. There's lots of great programs happening in the library, I encourage you to take part in them and visit and see what else they have to offer. In terms of regional drainage updates, there have been a lot conversations with the Army Corps, a lot of conversations with our municipal partners, on ways that we can reduce costs for these project concepts as well as collect and add additional pieces of benefit. The conversation will continue to evolve. We know that we have to do something. If we don't we'll be in the same position we've been in a number of times in recent history. Something has to change. I'm happy, like Peggy said, with the position that League City holds in this region and in this process. I look forward to the culmination of it, if you will. Thank you.

Larry Millican – No comments

John Bowen – I just wanted to bring to everyone's attention that the Texas Outlaw Boat Races are this weekend. Everybody enjoy yourselves, be safe and welcome to all the visitors coming to League City. Go out to dinner, spend your money, have a good time. Thank you all.

Justin Hicks – No comments

Chad Tressler – No comments

Nick Long – Last meeting I was not here, because I was attending the championship game for the 7U League City, 7U National, which is the west side of League City, won the district champions. And, maybe more importantly, the 8U east side team, the American team, also went undefeated and won the district championship. That was a big side, and obviously my kid plays for the 8U team so I was a little bit more involved in that one. Congratulations to both of those League City teams, really proud of them. Also, on the Butler Longhorn Museum, I also received that note, I think we all did. I responded back to the breeder, and I kind of just make it a public statement, I've been on the city council for almost 7 years now, and at no time has the council discussed publicly, or has anybody on the council talked to me privately about trying to take the things in the museum. I don't think we've ever discussed that. I don't think that, I'll speak for myself, I don't think we want them. We're not here to run the museum in any way. To the breeders and the people who have exhibited their family's treasures or the things that mean a lot to them, I don't think the city's in the business of trying to steal those from you. I told the breeder that and I called him and also sent an email about that. Whatever we decide to do with the museum, and I think it has to do more with the building and the money, it is certainly not about us trying to power grab or to go get those exhibits. Thanks.

Andy Mann – Just one quick thing, I attended the TML Legislative Update in Austin yesterday with Councilman Dugie. While there were a lot of interesting changes, the one real takeaway that I found was if you want to stop Austin from eroding local control, the real key to doing it, is to have them go after TML. I think that the legislature might have been so wrapped up in killing taxpayer funded lobbying that they actually didn't get around to taking anything from us this year. There were a lot of changes, but nothing you can really point to that was a serious grab. There was one other interesting – and this is total inside baseball – if you're in a city that's bigger than 250,000 people, you can be certified as part of the Defund the Police Initiative. There was a law that was passed that if you're city's over 250,000, and you reduce the police salary by, I think, 10 percent, that all of the cities that were annexed over the last 30 years, are going to be in the position to recall their annex under different rules. That could be potentially fascinating if you really play that out in your head there. It's just something to be looking for if you're a hack who likes looking at stuff like this. Otherwise, if you live in Kingwood, you might actually really want to pay attention to how the next year's budget looks. Thank you.

Mayor Hallisey – Sunday, I got invited down to the Butler Longhorn Museum, because the bicycle riders, there were over 100 of them over two days I think is what I was told, who rode from Houston to Galveston to the Juneteenth activities down on the island and then turned around and rode back Sunday afternoon. They were in a lot better shape than I could have been, that's 100 miles of bike riding. Good for them. They were delightful, they loved the museum. A lot of great comments from people who stopped in there. The museum, I'm going to say this and I know we're going to talk about it later, but the museum represents our history. We have a rich history in this town. I'm sorry, I kind of believe that the character of a community is determined by those who came before us. That's what determines our character. We've had everything from cowboys to people that fought in the Spanish-American War, people who fought in World War I and World War II. In fact, Fairview Cemetery down at the end of Kansas Street, which was once Old Galveston Road, which there are 10-15 Civil War veterans buried there, 20-30 World War I, World War II veterans buried there, and we honor them every year. Which leads me to, you know, I don't make any secret that I'm Irish. I wear green on March 17, and if I was able to have a beer I'd have a green beer, but since I can't have beer anymore I don't have green beer. I'm proud to be an Irish person. I studied my history. My father had a little green beanie that he wore down at Houston. We all come from somewhere, and we all have a day that is significant to us. Juneteenth became obvious to me that to African Americans in this country is a significant mark, and emancipation was a significant mark. I was also invited down there for the emancipation bike ride. Probably 75 people riding from Galveston to Houston, they're very proud, people in that community, of that day. If any of you have called and asked me to show up, it doesn't matter what it's for, whether it's for some young woman who's got a cause, or it's bohemian day, I try to honor. We are a multi-cultural community. I don't see it as a political action to go somewhere. I see it as a duty and I see it as an honor to go do that. I did it Sunday, I did it last year on the same date and the year before on the same date, but I also go to Little League openings, and everything else. I'm here to support what's good about League City. Now, we get to the Winfield family. I have driven everybody nuts over the last couple of years. I was really taken when the three great-granddaughters converged on my office a couple of years ago and started telling me about the Winfields. I knew about the Hobbs. I knew Jim Hobbs, he was a friend of mine, but I didn't know about the Winfield connection. I became passionate about learning. I went to their family reunion and had a great time. Nicest people in the world. Passion and emotion meeting together in an Irishman is not a good combination, and last council meeting was not a good combination. I'm going to support the amendment tonight, because once the emotion subsides and I get looking at it and I look up and down these aisles and I see who's voting for what, I don't know why they're doing it, but I think the Winfields need to be acknowledged in this town. I have spend a good amount of my speeches talking about them. Anytime that I get around people I'm going on about it. You've got to remember, when I came to town, people like Ervin Brittnacher and Dallas Salmon and all of those people were friends of mine. I was fascinated to ask them what it was like here before the turn of the century in 1900. It's just one of my little quirks in life. I'm fascinated, the three women who came to see me certainly got my attention. I didn't know a thing about them. I didn't know that they were here before the turn of the century. I made one mistake, I kept saying they came to League City in the 1870s and there was a really nice lady, Kathy Menninger put me in touch with her, who sent me a nice note that said, it's a good story, but they didn't get here until the early 1900s. They came to Texas in the 1870s when they went over to Fayette County, which was La Grange. I'm sorry I made a mistake I get excited, but nonetheless, I hope after tonight is over, and if we pass the amendment, which I have no idea how anybody's going to vote other than the four from last week, then we have cemented the Winfield family into the history of this community, which was my only objective in the first place. I thought that connecting the two roads on land that he once owned was a really smart move. Now, we're going to spend probably several million dollars for the cut through when it could have cost us a couple of hundred dollars for some signs and a plaque. But, that's okay, the important thing is, Alex Winfield is going to be remembered in the annals of League City's history and I appreciate that. For those who voted for the amendment, you in fact made me happy, once my emotions calmed down, because the original objective got taken care of. With that, I want to say we're going to look at appointing the Parks Board again tonight. That was another flare-up between several of us. I just don't think volunteers ought to be berated publicly. I've gotten over it. We've got a bunch of people that wanted on there. The chairman of the Parks Board is here. I've gotten several calls from him saying this is just a bunch of silliness you're killing our opportunity of getting things done, and so tonight we will put an end to it, I hope.

8. REPORTS FROM STAFF MEMBERS

Announcements concerning items of community interest. No action will be taken or discussed.

John Baumgartner – Thank you, Mayor. Just a couple of quick announcements. As we wind up the month of June, I know it's only the 22nd, we're looking forward to the July holidays. As Sarah likes to say, we always like to be first and do it big so on July 3 we will reinstate our Fireworks Extravaganza at the Sportsplex. That event begins at 7. Sarah didn't give me any notes. Then on July 4, we will have our traditional Citizens Appreciation Day at Hometown Heroes with things to do for the kids. The pools will get open and hotdogs and watermelon and things like that. We're proud to have both of those events back this year after missing them for COVID. Lastly, I would just like to kind of give a shout-out or just a show of appreciation for Chief Gary Ratliff, he played a huge role in saving the life of one of our residents. He, along with EMS Chief Kunkel, were on their way to work when they came upon a citizen in need and we've got a short video to kind of replay that. (Video Plays) We're obviously proud of Chief Ratliff and Chief Kunkel in showing us how to take that little bit extra League City way.
